

Last September 29th, 2004 at the conference room of the Hilton Hotel in Margarita Island, Venezuela, took place the Intellectual Property International Congress, which was made in homage to Dr. Ricardo Antequera Parilli, founding partner of our firm, and one the most distinguished Venezuelan lawyer in this field.

This four days event counted with the participation of outstanding professionals in Intellectual Property, International Law and Modern Technologies, both national and international such as Argentina, Chile, Spain, United States, Guatemala, Mexico, Panama, Peru and Uruguay, and more than 500 persons assisted to the congress.

Topics as the protection of patents, industrial designs and distinctive signs related to internet, the relationship between Unfair Competition and Intellectual Property, an extensive and deep study of the Copyright and the Neighboring Rights and the observance and protection of these rights, among other relevant issues, were explained in perfectly clear and interesting expositions.
